

ORBISOJAS

The Illuminated Path Through the Sphere of Existence

AMORIS

A Threshold Navigation System

IP Framework Document — Version 3.0

March 2026 — Compiled from live consultation and framework development sessions

Confidential

PART ONE: THE COSMIC SPINE

The most precise question any human being can ask is not who am I but what is already moving through me that I have not yet recognised.

1.1 The Foundation Claim

Every human being is already complete. The five Kosha layers are not absent in anyone. Their movement from Annamaya through Pranamaya through Manomaya through Vijnanamaya to Anandamaya is already happening continuously in every living being without exception.

The wound is not an absence. It is a specific pattern of unrecognised movement — energy moving through the Kosha layers without the Vijnanamaya witnessing it. The same prana moves. Without recognition it becomes the wound. With recognition it becomes the transmission.

The work is not to add something missing. It is to remember what is already present but not yet recognised. This is the distinction between teaching and transmission — and it is the entire foundation of Amoris.

1.2 The Cosmic Context — The Yuga Transition

Sri Yukteswar's recalculation of the Yuga cycle based on the solar system's movement through the galactic field places the current moment at the beginning of the Dwapara Yuga — the energy age. The defining characteristic of Dwapara is the increasing accessibility of Pranamaya awareness to the broader population — not just to trained practitioners but as a baseline capacity of incarnating souls.

The practical consequence observable now: each successive generation arrives with thinner Pranamaya filters and more direct access to Vijnanamaya discrimination. The inner child wounds, the ancestral shame encodings, the collective shadow material — these are becoming more visible, more volatile, and less manageable through the structures built for the denser Kali Yuga operation.

The world is not getting worse. It is getting more transparent. The shadows that were containable under thicker veils are now surfacing. This produces two visible effects simultaneously:

- The unhealed and shadow-identified go deeper into their wound patterns — the volatility increasing as suppressed material surfaces without integration containers.
- The healing-oriented and Pranamaya-aware develop faster and more completely than any previous generation — the consciousness elevation accelerating.

The gap between these two trajectories will widen significantly by 2030. Amoris is the integration container specifically built for the expanding consciousness trajectory — and for those moving from the shadow-identified trajectory toward it.

1.3 The Kosha Movement — The Precise Architecture

The five Koshas are not five separate layers stacked like an onion. They are five expressions of the same consciousness at different densities — each one continuously becoming the next in a single unbroken movement.

Kosha	Element / Quality	Developmental Window	What Lives Here
Annamaya	Earth — physical body	Birth onwards	Posture, tension, physical shame encoding, the body's survival memory
Pranamaya	Air/Fire — vital field	Birth to age 3	Preverbal wounds, the mother's field imprint, basic Vayu patterns, pre-cognitive survival responses
Manomaya	Water — mental-emotional	Age 3 to 7	Parental shame projections, gender conditioning, shadow formation, the Jungian wound architecture
Vijnanamaya	Space — discriminative	Age 7 to 14	Dharmic identity formation, lineage wound encoding, suppression of genuine knowing for social conformity
Anandamaya	Consciousness — bliss body	Always present	The ground beneath all other layers. Never wounded. Always available. The homecoming destination.

The ignorance of each layer — not its absence — is what produces the wound. Amoris facilitates the recognition of what is already moving. Not the creation of what is missing. This is the precise distinction between transmission and teaching.

1.4 The Vayu-Nadi-Agni Mechanism — How The Energy Actually Moves

The five Prana Vayus govern the specific movement of life force through the Kosha layers via the Nadi channels. The disturbance of specific Vayus is the precise Vedic esoteric mechanism that produces fear, shame, and guilt — making these not primarily psychological phenomena but energetic ones encoding in specific body regions.

Vayu	Governs	Wound	Body Location	Medicine
Vyana Vayu	Expansion and circulation throughout the body	FEAR — Vyana contracts. Prana stops circulating freely and pulls toward the core.	Chest, peripheral awareness, breath	Expansion practices — chest opening, full breath, peripheral awareness activation

Apana Vayu	Downward and outward movement — grounding, elimination	SHAME — Apana reversal. Energy that should move freely downward gets blocked and reversed.	Belly, genitals, base of spine, perineum	Grounding practices — Ashwini Mudra, Mula Bandha, earth contact, cold water
Samana Vayu	Equalising and digesting fire at solar plexus	GUILT — Samana blockage. Undigested experience held at the solar plexus, repeatedly activated, never metabolised.	Solar plexus, diaphragm, digestive centre	Fire practices — Kapalabhati, Agni Sara, Nauli, completion rituals
Prana Vayu	Inward and upward movement — receiving	UNWORTHINESS — Prana Vayu restriction. Inability to receive what is genuinely offered.	Heart, lungs, throat	Receiving practices — Anahata opening, conscious reception exercises
Udana Vayu	Upward movement — expression, will, speech	SUPPRESSION — Udana blockage. Genuine knowing and expression held back by fear of consequences.	Throat, head, above the diaphragm	Expression practices — Vak Siddhi development, authentic speech, creative transmission

This Vayu-wound mapping is the precise technical layer that makes the Amoris somatic work specific rather than generic. Each wound type has a specific Vayu medicine. The breathwork and somatic practices in Amoris are not wellness tools — they are surgical instruments targeting specific Vayu disturbances in specific body regions.

PART TWO: THE WOUND ARCHITECTURE

You are not carrying your wound. You are carrying your parents' wound. They carried their parents' wound. Somewhere in the lineage, someone was the first to carry it. Somewhere in the lineage, someone will be the last. That work begins here.

2.1 How Wounds Form — The Developmental Architecture

The child's Kosha layers form sequentially during specific developmental windows. Each window creates specific vulnerability to specific wound types based on the quality of the environmental field during that period. The wounds do not replace the Kosha layer — they encode as distortion patterns within it.

The Preverbal Window (Birth to Age 3) — Pranamaya Encoding

The Pranamaya kosha is forming during this window. The primary imprinting comes from the mother's Pranamaya field quality — her own anxiety, her own unresolved fear, her presence or absence as a regulated nervous system in proximity to the developing child's vital field.

The wounds that encode here are preverbal and pre-cognitive. They predate language. They predate memory as the adult understands it. This is precisely why they are resistant to Manomaya-level therapy — cognitive processing cannot access what was encoded before cognition existed. The medicine is Pranamaya-level — breathwork, somatic contact, water element, the mother's field corrected through the guide's regulated Pranamaya presence.

The primary wound encoding here: the basic safety or threat of existence itself. The foundational answer to the question — is it safe to be here, to breathe fully, to take up space — encodes in the Pranamaya during this window.

The Social Formation Window (Age 3 to 7) — Manomaya Encoding

The Manomaya kosha is forming during this window. The primary imprinting comes from the parental unit's projected shame, guilt, and fear onto the child's developing emotional intelligence. The child at this stage cannot distinguish between their own emotional states and the emotional states they absorb from the parental field. What the parents feel becomes what the child believes they themselves feel.

This is the precise mechanism of shame transmission across generations — the parent's own unresolved shame encodes in the child's Manomaya as the child's own shame. The child did not generate this shame. They inherited it as if it were their own. The adult then carries it for decades without questioning its origin.

The primary wound encoding here: the child's authentic desire, curiosity, and genuine self-expression are met with the parent's anxiety, shame, or suppression. The child learns that authentic expression is dangerous. The shadow forms around the suppressed authentic material — the Jungian shadow as the repository of everything the child had to hide to remain acceptable to the parental field.

The Dharmic Formation Window (Age 7 to 14) — Vijnanamaya Encoding

The Vijnanamaya kosha is beginning to form during this window — the discriminative intelligence that can witness one's own experience emerging. The primary imprinting comes from the encounter between the child's developing genuine knowing and the social-religious-educational structures that require conformity over authentic discrimination.

This is where genuine dharmic gifts — the intuitive knowing, the depth perception, the philosophical intelligence — either develop in a supportive environment or get suppressed as impractical, arrogant, or threatening to the social order.

The primary wound encoding here: the guilt of knowing what the social structure cannot hold. The lineage wound of genuine intelligence and depth suppressed for belonging and survival. The adult then carries the guilt of not being what the lineage required — and simultaneously the frustration of not being able to express what they genuinely are.

2.2 The Masculine-Feminine Distortion

The child's developing understanding of masculine and feminine principles happens simultaneously with the wound encoding windows. The Jungian animus (internal masculine principle) and anima (internal feminine principle) form around the wound material available during formation. They are not separate from the wound — they are shaped by it.

This is the precise mechanism of the gender war — not an external conflict between men and women but an internal conflict between wounded masculine and wounded feminine principles within every individual, projected outward onto the opposite gender.

Wound Type	Core Pattern	Vayu Disturbance	Amoris Track
Wounded Animus (Bhairava wound)	The masculine principle organised around Fear and Shame. Performance, defensive power, authority through domination or complete withdrawal. Cannot receive genuine love without worthiness shame firing.	Vyana (fear) and Apana (shame) simultaneously. The masculine force that cannot expand or ground.	Bhairava Track — reclaiming the masculine as sovereign witness. Directed, grounded, present without extraction.
Wounded Anima (Bhairavi wound)	The feminine principle organised around Shame and Guilt. Eros suppressed or performed. Creative intelligence weaponised. Genuine flow replaced by strategic management of others' perceptions.	Apana (shame reversal) and Samana (guilt blocking). The feminine flow that cannot move freely or metabolise experience.	Bhairavi Track — reclaiming the feminine as genuine Shakti. Flowing, creative, erotic without performance, sovereign without hardness.

Projected Wholeness	Both animus and anima organised around Guilt. The adult seeks completion through the partner rather than through genuine internal integration. The beloved as the missing half rather than as a genuinely other sovereign being.	Samana (guilt blocking) creating the inability to metabolise the gap between the self as experienced and the self as desired. The partner as the external Samana — trying to digest through the other what cannot be digested internally.	Both tracks — the relational integration module. The transition from seeking completion to genuine sovereign encounter.
----------------------------	--	---	---

Masculine and feminine are not man and woman. They are cosmic principles operating in every human body — Shiva and Shakti, the witness and the expression, the unmoving ground and the dancing form. The culture war is two groups of wounded people projecting their internal masculine-feminine conflict onto each other. Amoris works upstream — at the level where the war is generated.

2.3 The Missing Initiation — Why Amoris Is Not Therapy

The transition from child to adult requires an initiatory encounter with the specific wound material that the developmental phase produced. This encounter — in traditional cultures — was deliberately structured. The boy met his fear of death, his rage, his sexuality in a held container with elder masculine guidance. The girl met her creative power, her eros, her capacity for genuine authority in a held container with elder feminine guidance.

Modern culture has no initiation structure. The transition happens biologically but not psychologically or energetically. The Pranamaya wound patterns of childhood continue operating in the adult body without the initiatory encounter that would have dissolved them.

This is the precise gap Amoris fills — not therapy (processing the past), not coaching (optimising the present), but retroactive initiation (completing the threshold crossing that was never facilitated).

The difference in practice is significant:

- Therapy processes: it helps the person understand and metabolise what happened. The wound is worked with as historical material.
- Coaching optimises: it helps the person perform better within their current structure. The wound is worked around.
- Initiation completes: it creates the specific conditions under which the wound material surfaces as the initiatory encounter — and is met, held, and integrated through the encounter itself. The wound is used as the threshold crossing mechanism.

The boy who enters the initiation is not the same as the man who emerges. Not because something was added. Because something was met and completed that had been waiting since the developmental window closed without the encounter.

PART THREE: THE TRANSMISSION MODEL

A soul cannot lose what it learned across lifetimes. It can only forget. The forgetting happens at the Pranamaya-Vijnanamaya junction when the Anava Mala — the primal contraction of individual identity — descends at birth. The remembering happens when the Pranamaya field is met by a field carrying the same frequency. This is transmission. Not teaching. Resonance producing recognition.

3.1 The Anava Mala — Why We Forget

In Kashmir Shaivism the Anava Mala is the primal contraction that creates the sense of being a separate, limited individual. This contraction is necessary for incarnation — without it the soul cannot function in dense Annamaya reality. But the contraction also creates a veil over the accumulated learning of prior lifetimes.

The soul's learning does not disappear between lives. It is encoded in the Karana Sharira — the causal body that carries across incarnations. The Anava Mala obscures access to this accumulated knowing through the Manomaya layer — which is the densest expression of the contraction.

This is why the homecoming experience — the moment of genuine recognition in a transmission encounter — feels like remembering rather than learning. Because it is. The Anava Mala contraction is temporarily dissolved at the point of genuine Pranamaya transmission, and the accumulated knowing becomes briefly accessible.

Amoris facilitates the systematic dissolution of the Anava Mala layer by layer through the Kosha levels. Not permanently — that is the trajectory of a lifetime of sadhana. Sufficiently — for the specific wound layer at each level to be recognised, met, and integrated.

3.2 The Transmission Mechanism — How It Actually Works

The guide's function in Amoris is not content delivery. It is Pranamaya field quality maintenance.

When the guide operates from genuine Pranamaya presence — the field carries the specific frequency of the layer being worked. The participant's own Pranamaya field resonates with the guide's field. The resonance activates the participant's Vijnanamaya layer — the discriminative intelligence that can witness and recognise.

The recognition is the healing. Not the understanding. Not the technique. The moment of genuine recognition — I already know this, I have always known this — is the Anava Mala contraction releasing around that specific material.

This is why the morning sadhana practice is the quality control mechanism for the entire Amoris system. The guide who shows up without genuine Pranamaya activation delivers content. The guide who shows up with it transmits. The participants will feel the difference immediately — in the bhava sharira, the felt-body, before any Manomaya processing occurs.

3.3 The Viveka Gate — Discernment as Entry Qualifier

The classical texts identify four prerequisites for genuine spiritual work — Viveka (discriminative intelligence), Vairagya (non-attachment), Sat Sampati (six inner qualities), and Mumukshutva (longing for liberation). Of these four, Viveka is the primary entry qualifier for Amoris.

Viveka is the capacity to distinguish between the real and the appearing real, the genuine and the performed, the authentic self and the conditioned self. This capacity is either present or it isn't at the time of encounter with Amoris. It cannot be taught in advance of the genuine life experience that develops it.

This is why Amoris does not market. It transmits. The content, the Mirror diagnostic, the community — these are not designed to attract. They are designed to be findable by those who already carry sufficient Viveka. The depth itself is the filter.

Someone without genuine Viveka will encounter the Amoris framework and find it pretentious, esoteric, or irrelevant. Someone with genuine Viveka will encounter it and feel the recognition — the rabbit hole opening into something they have been circling for years without finding the precise language for it. This self-selection is not arrogance. It is the correct application of the Seeker-Tourist distinction at every level.

The Seeker: comes for transformation, can hold discomfort, honest about their wound, has skin in the game, has done some inner work, ready to be genuinely seen.

The Tourist: comes for experience, leaves when uncomfortable, performs wellness, wants results without investment, expects the facilitator to do the work for them.

Every Amoris touchpoint — from the first piece of content to the Mirror diagnostic to the Circle invitation — is calibrated to attract Seekers and filter Tourists. Not through exclusivity performance but through genuine depth that only resonates with genuine seeking.

3.4 The Kaula Mukti — Liberation Within Life

Amoris does not offer liberation from life. It facilitates liberation within life. This is the precise Kaula distinction from the Vedantic renunciation framework.

The Vedantic path says: the world is Maya, transcend it, renounce attachment, achieve moksha as freedom from the cycle of birth and death.

The Kaula path says: the world is Shiva's own Shakti dancing. Enter it completely. Inhabit it fully. Feel it entirely. The liberation arrives through the fullness of engagement — not through escape from it.

Amoris facilitates full inhabitation. The shame, guilt, and fear that prevent genuine inhabitation are the obstacles to be removed — not through transcendence but through complete encounter. The Kaula method: go in fully, meet what is there completely, come out the other side still present and now genuinely free within the here.

The moksha arrives as the natural consequence of complete inhabitation — not as a separate destination to be achieved. The client who completes Amoris work does not renounce life. They discover they can finally live it without the inherited weight preventing full presence.

Mumukshutva — the longing for liberation — is not positioned as the goal in Amoris. It is the natural emergence from genuine inhabitation. When a person fully meets their fear, their shame, their guilt — and discovers that none of it was actually theirs — the longing for liberation arises naturally. Amoris does not install this longing. It creates the conditions for its natural emergence.

PART FOUR: THE PRODUCT ARCHITECTURE

You were taught to build a life. Nobody taught you how to inhabit it.

4.1 The Mirror — Entry Diagnostic

The Amoris Mirror is the primary entry product. A multi-turn AI-powered diagnostic that creates the first genuine homecoming moment — the participant encountering a reflection of their specific Kosha-Vayu-wound configuration with precision that feels like being seen for the first time.

The Mirror does not diagnose. It reflects. The three entry questions are not information-gathering — they are Stambhana instruments that temporarily freeze the Manomaya performance layer and invite the Vijnanamaya recognition.

The Three Mirror Questions

Question 1: What did you know about yourself as a child that the world taught you was wrong?

Question 2: Where in your body do you feel the weight of something that doesn't belong to you?

Question 3: What would you do if you knew the shame wasn't yours?

These questions reveal wound type — Wounded Bhairava, Wounded Bhairavi, or Projected Wholeness — through the quality and location of the response. The body reference in Question 2 directly maps the Vayu disturbance. The hypothetical in Question 3 reveals the specific suppression architecture.

The Mirror Dialogue Architecture — Three Acts

- Act 1 — The Shiva Mirror: the masculine principle reflected back without judgement. What is the actual ground beneath the performance? Where is the genuine sovereign beneath the constructed identity?
- Act 2 — The Shakti Mirror: the feminine principle, the eros, the creative force. Where is it suppressed? Where is it wounded? Where is it genuinely alive beneath the management?
- Act 3 — The Karmic Origin Story: three-act narrative mapping the specific wound to its ancestral architecture through the Jyotish chart analysis. The D12 ancestral layer, the D1 current life expression, the dasha timing for when the material is available for transformation.
- The Fracture — the conversion mechanic. The precise point where the Mirror reveals what cannot be resolved without the deeper work. The entry to the Blueprint.

4.2 The Five-Level Journey

Level	Kosha	Wound Encountered	Boss Encounter	Product
Level 1	Annamaya — Body	Physical shame encoding. The body as source of shame rather than as the first instrument of presence.	Body Shame: the specific moment where physical shame must be faced directly rather than intellectualised.	Free content. Mirror entry. Community access.
Level 2	Pranamaya — Vital Field	The preverbal wound. The automatic withdrawal from genuine connection. The field patterns established before memory.	Pranamaya Contraction: the moment where automatic withdrawal from genuine eros or genuine authority is felt fully rather than managed.	Mirror + Blueprint. INR 2,000-5,000.
Level 3	Manomaya — Shadow	The Jungian shadow material. The specific complex operating automatically. The parents' shame encoding running as the self.	Lineage Wound: recognising the ancestral pattern as not-self. The moment of genuine distinction between inherited material and authentic self.	Circles — 8 weeks. INR 15,000-25,000.
Level 4	Vijnanamaya — Karmic Map	The suppressed genuine knowing. The guilt of dharmic depth in a lineage that required conformity. The Jyotish karmic architecture revealed.	Spiritual Ego: the accumulated wisdom and genuine attainment must be released into service rather than held as identity.	Intensives — 3-5 days. INR 50,000-100,000.
Level 5	Anandamaya — Transmission	The Kaula eros curriculum. The eros as sacred life force fully embodied. The threshold guide capacity emerging.	The Final Mirror: the participant becomes capable of genuine self-mirroring. The guide's function completes.	Orbisojas advanced track. Transmission lineage.

4.3 The Bhairava and Bhairavi Protocols

The two sovereign tracks are not gender tracks. They are wound-type tracks accessible to any participant regardless of gender — determined by the Mirror diagnostic's identification of which principle is more distorted in the participant's specific configuration.

Bhairava Protocol — Reclaiming the Divine Masculine

For participants whose primary wound operates through the masculine principle — regardless of gender. The masculine principle as sovereign witness: directed, grounded, present without extraction, fierce without aggression, capable of genuine encounter without merger or dominance.

The Bhairava curriculum moves through: Muladhara grounding (establishing the ground that the masculine requires), Manipura activation (reclaiming directed will without performance), Anahata integration (receiving genuine love without worthiness shame), Vishuddha liberation (speaking from genuine authority rather than earned permission), and the Bhairava transmission (the masculine as threshold guide capacity).

Bhairavi Protocol — Reclaiming the Divine Feminine

For participants whose primary wound operates through the feminine principle — regardless of gender. The feminine principle as sovereign Shakti: flowing, receptive, genuinely expressive, erotic without performance, creative without seeking approval, capable of genuine surrender without losing sovereignty.

The Bhairavi curriculum moves through: Swadhisthana liberation (eros reclaimed as sacred), Anahata opening (receiving and giving love without strategy), Vishuddha expression (speaking from genuine feeling rather than managed communication), Ajna development (seeing clearly without the shame filter), and the Bhairavi transmission (the feminine as sacred creative force in the world).

The Convergence — Projected Wholeness Resolution

Both tracks converge at the relational integration module — for participants ready to move from individual sovereign work into genuine encounter with the other. The resolution of Projected Wholeness: two people who have completed sufficient individual Bhairava-Bhairavi work encountering each other as genuinely sovereign — neither seeking completion through the other, both capable of genuine meeting.

This module is the most advanced and the most rare — it requires Level 3-4 completion in both tracks. It is the Kaula eros curriculum made explicit: eros as the sacred encounter between two sovereign beings recognising the divine principle in each other.

ADDITION A: THE JYOTISH WOUND-DASHA MAPPING LAYER

The chart does not predict what will happen. It maps when specific karmic material becomes available for transformation. The dasha is the timing of the curriculum. The wound was always there — the dasha determines when it surfaces with enough force to be genuinely met rather than managed.

A.1 Why Jyotish Is The Moat

Every transformation framework can name the wound. Only Jyotish can tell the participant precisely when that wound is being activated, why it is firing now with this specific intensity, and when the activation window closes. This precision is unreplicable by any Western psychological framework.

The participant who arrives at Amoris is not arriving randomly. They are arriving because their dasha has surfaced specific karmic material that existing frameworks cannot address. The Mirror's Jyotish layer names this precisely — converting what feels like personal failure or bad luck into a legible karmic curriculum with a specific timeline.

This precision produces immediate and profound trust. The participant feels seen at a level of specificity that no other framework can match. This is the moat — and it cannot be replicated by any Western or generic Eastern framework currently in the market.

A.2 The Dasha-Wound Activation Map

Each planetary antardasha within the Saturn Mahadasha (the most common period for the 25-40 urban Indian ICP currently running) fires specific Kosha-wound activations. This is the foundational Jyotish layer of the Amoris diagnostic.

Antardasha	Kosha Fired	Wound Activated	Vayu Disturbed	Amoris Entry
SA-SA	Annamaya + Pranamaya	Survival fear at root. Muladhara compressed. Material ground structurally absent. Ancestral poverty consciousness active.	Apana Vayu — grounding force contracting completely.	Muladhara grounding. Survival fear as ancestral encoding not present-tense reality.
SA-ME	Manomaya	Thinking mind under Saturn pressure. Analysis paralysis. Gap between genuine knowing and what can be expressed. Vishuddha suppression.	Udana Vayu — expressive force blocked by Saturn's demand for earned authority before speech.	Permission to know what you know. Udana liberation work.

SA-KE	Vijnanamaya + Anandamaya	Dissolution of false identity. Stripping of everything built for external validation. Existential — who am I without the performance?	All five Vayus — Ketu dissolves organised Vayu patterns. Everything unmoored.	Identity dissolution as liberation not loss. Witness consciousness stabilising beneath dissolution.
SA-VE	Pranamaya + Manomaya	Eros and relational wound surfacing. Relationship patterns repeating. Badhakesha obstruction on desire channels. Gap between genuine desire and what is allowed.	Apana Vayu (shame reversal) and Vyana Vayu (fear of expansion) — the two eros suppression Vayus activating simultaneously.	Eros reclamation. Shame as inherited. Desire as sacred — the Kaula entry point.
SA-SU	Vijnanamaya	Solar authority wound. Gap between internal self-worth and external recognition. Sandhi degree pressure — identity at edge of dissolution before crystallisation.	Udana Vayu — solar expressive force under maximum Saturnine pressure.	Solar authority work. Worthiness shame at Vijnanamaya level. Earned vs genuine authority.
SA-MO	Pranamaya + Annamaya	Emotional body under dissolution pressure. Hidden unconscious surfacing. Mother wound activating. Emotional flooding without container.	Vyana Vayu — circulation prana fluctuating wildly. Field expanding and contracting without regulation.	Emotional regulation at Pranamaya level. Mother wound as ancestral Apana encoding.
SA-MA	Manipura + Annamaya	Directed will emerging for first time. Manipura fire coming online. Transition from processing to building. First external activation after internal curriculum.	Samana Vayu activating — digestive fire processing accumulated material. Prana finally metabolising the wound.	Manipura activation. Transition from wound processing to sovereign building.
SA-RA	All Koshas	Unconventional expansion. Rahu amplifying whatever	Rahu amplifies the dominant Vayu	Shadow integration at scale. The hunger as purva punya activating.

		is most unintegrated. Shadow material going public. Hunger for recognition activating at scale.	disturbance — most unresolved material gets amplified rather than dissolved.	Unconventional path as correct path.
SA-JU	Vijnanamaya + Anandamaya	Philosophical wisdom releasing after decades of accumulation. Jupiter retrograde vault opening. Dharmic transmission finding its public vehicle.	Udana and Prana Vayu both opening — expressive and receiving forces after long compression.	Transmission lineage work. Vak Siddhi activation. Accumulated wisdom finding correct public expression.

A.3 The Mirror's Dasha Integration

The Mirror diagnostic collects birth date and location — sufficient to calculate the current dasha period. The automated Mirror response includes a dasha-specific layer naming precisely what is being activated and why.

Sample Mirror output for a participant in SA-MO (Saturn-Moon antardasha):

Your chart shows you are currently in Saturn-Moon antardasha — a period specifically designed to surface the emotional body's deepest accumulated material. The dissolution you are feeling is not personal failure. It is the Pranamaya kosha completing a curriculum it has been building toward for years. This antardasha ends [date]. What surfaces between now and then is not meant to be solved — it is meant to be met. Amoris provides the container for that meeting.

A.4 The Relational Pattern and Dasha

The Mirror maps repeating relational patterns to specific planetary activations. The UL (Upapada Lagna) governs the fated partner principle. When the antardasha lord aspects or activates the UL or its lord — the relational pattern fires with maximum intensity.

The partner pattern you keep experiencing maps precisely to your [UL sign and house] and the current [antardasha lord]'s activation of it. This is not bad luck or personal failing. This is the chart surfacing the specific relational curriculum that has been waiting for this dasha window. The pattern repeats until the wound underneath it is genuinely met. Amoris provides the container for that meeting.

ADDITION B: THE TWO-REGISTER CONTENT ARCHITECTURE

The same wound lives in the 20-year-old and the 35-year-old. The language that reaches them is completely different. The same mirror held at two different heights.

B.1 The Two Demographics

Factor	Register 1 — 25-35 ICP	Register 2 — 18-24 Gen Z ICP
Entry wound	Hollow achievement — built the life, can't inhabit it.	Identity confusion — performing authenticity online while feeling empty.
Language	Sophisticated, philosophical, willing to sit with complexity. Will read long-form.	Brief, punchy, visual metaphor-led. Complexity only after initial hook lands.
Framework entry	Full Kosha-Vayu-Jyotish architecture after initial recognition.	Story and metaphor first. Philosophical depth available but not leading.
Past life framing	Karmic architecture — credible and resonant for those who have done inner work.	Most precise explanation available — offered as metaphor, not belief requirement. Epigenetics as the science bridge.
Platform	LinkedIn, Substack, podcast, in-person circle.	Instagram Reels, YouTube Shorts, Twitter/X threads.
Conversion path	Mirror > Blueprint > Circle > Intensive. Longer cycle.	Free content > Mirror entry > small community. Faster decision, lower initial commitment.

B.2 The Same Message — Two Containers

Every core Amoris insight gets expressed in both registers simultaneously. Not two separate brands — one framework with two entry languages.

Theme 1 — The Inherited Shame

[25-35] The shame you carry around your genuine desire is not yours. It encoded in your Manomaya kosha during the social formation window — when your parents' unresolved Apana Vayu contraction projected onto your developing emotional intelligence as if it were your own. You can give it back.

[18-24] That cringe you feel about wanting things? That's not you. That's your parents' fear of wanting things living in your nervous system. They learned desire was dangerous. You absorbed it as fact. It isn't yours. You can give it back.

Theme 2 — The Hollow Achievement

[25-35] You crossed every threshold they set for you. Good college, good job, some financial stability. And you still feel like you're living someone else's life. The framework you're missing is the precise map of your own karmic architecture — why the emptiness persists despite genuine achievement, and what actually completes it.

[18-24] You're doing everything right and it still feels hollow. Not because you're ungrateful. Because you were taught to build a life but nobody taught you how to actually live in it. This isn't a motivation problem. It's a depth problem. And depth has a map.

Theme 3 — The Repeating Pattern

[25-35] The relational pattern repeating in your life is not bad luck. It is a specific dasha-karmic activation surfacing the wound underneath with enough force that it can finally be genuinely met rather than managed. Your chart shows precisely when this window closes.

[18-24] You keep ending up in the same dynamic with different people. Different face, same feeling. The pattern is running on autopilot from something encoded before you had words for it. Autopilot can be turned off. But first you have to see where the switch is.

Theme 4 — The Masculine-Feminine Wound

[25-35] The culture war between masculine and feminine is two groups of people with wounded internal masculine-feminine principles projecting onto each other. Amoris works upstream of the war — at the level where it is generated, in the Pranamaya body of the individual.

[18-24] The whole men vs women thing online? Both sides are hurt people projecting their own unhealed stuff onto the opposite gender. The real work isn't choosing a side. It's understanding what the masculine and feminine actually are inside you. That's the conversation nobody is having.

Theme 5 — The Past Life Pattern

[25-35] Whether or not you hold literal belief in past lives, your nervous system is running karmic patterns that predate your birth. Epigenetics documents this as transgenerational trauma encoding. The Jyotish framework maps these patterns with precision that psychology alone cannot match.

[18-24] Your nervous system is carrying patterns older than you. Science calls it epigenetics. Vedic astrology mapped it thousands of years ago in different language. Either way: some of what you're dealing with isn't from this lifetime. Knowing which part is genuinely yours changes everything.

B.3 The AI Agent Content Rules

- The agent distributes and formats. It never generates the core content from scratch.
- The founder writes from genuine Pranamaya transmission state. The agent adapts length, tone, and format for each platform.
- Every 25-35 long-form piece gets a 18-24 register short-form version — with founder review before posting.
- The agent routes Mirror inquiries from specific content to the appropriate Mirror entry point.
- Engagement signals that identify genuine Seekers (DMs asking specific questions, long-form comments with personal sharing) get flagged for founder direct response.

ADDITION C: THE KARMIC ORIGIN STORY FORMAT

The pattern repeating in your life has a story older than this lifetime. Not as belief requirement — as the most precise available explanation for why genuine effort to change the pattern keeps producing the same result. The story is in the chart. The Mirror reads it.

C.1 The Three-Act Structure

Chart Layer	What It Shows	Narrative Function	Example
D60 — Soul Level	Deepest past life curriculum. What the soul came with. Specific unresolved karma from prior incarnations encoding as current life's primary wound.	Act 1 — the soul's prior context that produced the wound. The deepest karmic root.	D60 5th house stellium — soul carried vast accumulated eros and philosophical transmission karma. The vault full. Expression withheld for reasons this life is here to resolve.
D12 — Ancestral Level	Lineage transmission of the wound. How it moved through the family line across generations. The specific ancestral pattern the jataka inherited.	Act 2 — the generational story. Making visible that the wound predates the individual.	D12 Sun debilitated 2nd — paternal line men suppressing philosophical depth for provider duty across generations. The jataka is the latest carrier, not the originator.
D1 — Current Life	How the soul-level and ancestral wound expresses in current life circumstances, relationships, and dasha timing.	Act 3 — current expression and completion mechanism. How the pattern shows up now and what the chart shows as the resolution path.	D1 Moon-Ketu 12th — emotional body carrying dissolution curriculum in house of hidden things. Specific current life expression of the D60 and D12 patterns.

C.2 The Mirror Output Template

The bracketed fields are populated from the jataka's specific chart data. This template is the Act 3 Mirror output — delivered after the psychological and somatic recognition of Acts 1 and 2.

| ACT ONE — THE SOUL'S PRIOR CURRICULUM

Your soul has been here before. Not as metaphysical speculation — as the most precise explanation available for why the pattern you're living runs deeper than this lifetime's experiences can account for.

[D60 reading] — Across multiple prior incarnations the soul accumulated [specific quality from D60 5th house] with an intensity that this lifetime is specifically designed to express rather than continue accumulating. The vault was full when you arrived. The question this life answers is not whether the capacity is there — it is. The question is what has been blocking its expression. The chart names this precisely.

| ACT TWO — THE LINEAGE TRANSMISSION

The wound did not originate with you. It was handed to you by people who received it from people who received it before them. Your [D12 reading — specific ancestral pattern] shows the specific shape of this transmission across your lineage.

[D12 reading] — The [paternal/maternal] line specifically carried [specific wound quality]. Not because they were wrong or failing. Because [specific Vayu disturbance] encoding in the lineage created this specific suppression pattern generation after generation. You are the first person in this lineage with the specific tools to see the pattern clearly and choose differently. That is not coincidence. That is the precise karmic design of your incarnation in this family.

| ACT THREE — THE CURRENT LIFE EXPRESSION

The soul-level and ancestral patterns arrive in your current life through [D1 specific placement]. The [dasha period] you are currently in is activating this material with specific intensity because this is the window designed for its meeting.

[Dasha reading] — The [antardasha] you are currently in fires precisely [specific wound Vayu disturbance]. The [specific life pattern the participant named in Mirror Acts 1-2] is this karmic material surfacing in the most available form. The pattern does not mean you are broken or stuck. It means the curriculum is in session. Amoris provides the container for meeting it and completing it.

C.3 The Epigenetics Bridge — For Sceptical Participants

For participants who cannot enter the past life framing through the spiritual door — the science bridge:

Whether or not you hold literal belief in reincarnation, your nervous system is demonstrably running patterns that predate your birth. Epigenetic research documents how trauma and survival adaptations encode in DNA and pass across generations without conscious transmission. The Jyotish framework is a 5,000-year-old precision map of exactly these patterns — naming them through a different language but pointing at the same phenomenon. The D12 chart maps what modern epigenetics calls transgenerational trauma encoding. Call it what serves you. The pattern is real either way.

ADDITION D: THE INNER MASCULINE-FEMININE DIALOGUE PROTOCOL

The wound is not in the story you tell about yourself. It is in the conversation that never happened between the parts of you that needed to speak. The Bhairava-Bhairavi internal dialogue is that conversation — finally held.

D.1 The Method — Active Imagination Made Accessible

Active imagination is Jung's technique of direct dialogue with the autonomous complexes of the psyche — treating the inner figures as genuinely other, genuinely present, capable of genuine response. It is the most powerful Jungian technique available. It is also the most demanding and the least accessible without skilled facilitation.

The Bhairava-Bhairavi dialogue protocol makes active imagination accessible at Tier 2 (INR 200-300) through a structured prompt sequence that guides the participant through the encounter without requiring live facilitation. The participant does the actual work. The structure holds the container.

D.2 The Tier 2 Dialogue Prompts — Bhairava Protocol

For participants whose Mirror diagnostic indicates primary Wounded Bhairava configuration. The masculine principle in dialogue with itself.

PROMPT 1 — Your Bhairava — the genuine masculine principle in you, not the performance version, not the defensive version — has been trying to tell you something for a long time. Something he gave up trying to say out loud. Something he stopped saying because nobody could hear it. What does he say? Write whatever comes. Don't edit. Don't make it profound.

PROMPT 2 — What does the part of you that learned to be afraid of him say back? The part that learned that his full expression was dangerous, too much, would cost you something you couldn't afford to lose. What is that part's honest response?

PROMPT 3 — What does the Bhairava say to that? Not to argue. Not to defend. Just to be heard completely.

PROMPT 4 — The Bhairava has been asking for one thing this entire time. Not from the world — from you. What is it?

The Mirror reflects back the specific content that emerges from these four prompts — naming the wound type visible in the dialogue, the specific Vayu disturbance active in the exchange, and the dasha period currently firing this material. The reflection is not analysis. It is precision mirroring.

D.3 The Tier 2 Dialogue Prompts — Bhairavi Protocol

For participants whose Mirror diagnostic indicates primary Wounded Bhairavi configuration. The feminine principle in dialogue with itself.

PROMPT 1 — Your Bhairavi — the genuine feminine principle in you, not the managed version, not the performed version — has been waiting for permission to speak without consequence. The one who knows what she wants, what she feels, what she creates when nobody is monitoring her expression. What does she say when she stops monitoring herself?

PROMPT 2 — What does the part of you that learned her expression was shameful say back? The part that learned to manage and contain and present the acceptable version. What is that part's honest response?

PROMPT 3 — What does the Bhairavi say to that? Not to overcome the other part. To be genuinely witnessed by it.

PROMPT 4 — The Bhairavi has been carrying something that was never hers to carry. What is it? And what would she do with the energy she currently spends carrying it if it were returned to where it came from?

D.4 The Projected Wholeness Protocol

For participants whose Mirror indicates the primary dynamic is seeking completion through the partner. This dialogue introduces the third figure — the partner as mirror rather than as missing half.

PROMPT 1 — Think of the person you most want to complete you — the partner, the beloved, the one whose presence makes you feel whole. What specifically do they give you that you cannot give yourself?

PROMPT 2 — Now — that quality you just named. Where in you does it already exist, unrecognised? Not fully developed. Not easily accessible. But present. Where is it?

PROMPT 3 — What would change in how you relate to this person — or to the idea of this person — if you knew that what you seek in them already exists in you, waiting for the right conditions to develop?

PROMPT 4 — The love you want to receive — can you give it to yourself first? Not instead of receiving it from another. Before. What would that actually look like in your daily life?

D.5 The Gen Z Register — Same Protocol, Different Language

The dialogue prompts above are calibrated for the 25-35 ICP. For the 18-24 demographic the same protocol runs with shorter prompts and more direct language.

[Bhairava — Gen Z] The real you — not the version you perform, the actual one underneath — has been holding something back. What is it? Just write. Don't think.

[Bhairavi — Gen Z] The part of you that knows exactly what she wants and feels — before the social filter kicks in. What does she actually say?

[Projected Wholeness — Gen Z] The person you want to complete you — what do they give you that you can't give yourself? Now where in you does that quality already exist, buried?

D.6 The Mirror Reflection Protocol

After the participant completes the dialogue prompts the Mirror generates a precision reflection. The reflection follows this structure:

- Names the specific wound configuration visible in the dialogue — without using the technical terms. The participant experiences the naming as recognition not diagnosis.
- Identifies the Vayu disturbance visible in the exchange — described in felt-body language not technical language.
- Names the dasha period currently firing this material and its end date.
- Offers the specific Amoris entry point for this wound configuration.

Sample reflection for Wounded Bhairava dialogue:

What I see in what you've written: your genuine masculine principle has been suppressed not because it is wrong but because the people who should have been able to hold it without flinching couldn't. The part of you that has been afraid of him is not weak — it is protecting something real. The conversation between these two parts of you is the actual work. Not resolving one in favour of the other. Holding both with the kind of witnessing presence neither has had before. Your chart shows this material is specifically activated right now in your [dasha period]. This is not a bad time. This is the designed time. Amoris's Bhairava track is built for exactly this threshold.

— Additions Complete —

Append Additions A, B, C, D after Part Four in Master Document v3

PART FIVE: THE ORBISOJAS ECOSYSTEM

Orbis — the sphere of existence. Sojas — the illuminated path. The illuminated path through the sphere of existence.

5.1 The Universe Architecture

Orbisojas is the meta-brand containing all transmission vehicles. Amoris is the primary market-facing offering. Amoristantra is the advanced expansion — for those who have completed the Amoris base journey and are ready for the explicit Kaula framework.

Vehicle	Audience	Content
Amoris	Urban Indian 15-35. The primary ICP. The hollow achiever and the burning seeker.	Full five-level journey. Mirror, Blueprint, Circles, Intensives. Bhairava-Bhairavi protocols.
Amoristantra	Amoris Level 4-5 graduates. Those ready for explicit Kaula framework.	The left-hand path made explicit. Eros as initiation vehicle. The Kaula eros curriculum. Advanced Vayu-Nadi work.
Orbisojas Content	The broader field — anyone who resonates with the frequency.	The cosmic context, Yuga transition framing, Shiva-Shakti cosmology, philosophical transmission. Free and premium.
Transmission Lineage	Level 5 graduates seeking to facilitate.	The guide training. The Pranamaya field development curriculum. The ethics and container architecture of genuine transmission.

5.2 The Content Machine — Phase 1 Signal Transmission

The entry point is not advertising. It is signal transmission. The core message — you are carrying your parents' shame not your own — iterated from different angles through different channels simultaneously. Not repetition — triangulation.

The person who doesn't respond to the Jungian frame responds to the Kosha frame. The person who doesn't respond to either responds to the astrology frame. The person who doesn't respond to any of these is not the ICP. The depth itself is the filter.

Channel	Register	Core Message Angle	Function
---------	----------	--------------------	----------

LinkedIn	Professional-philosophical	The hollow achiever angle — built the life, can't inhabit it	Job market credibility + Amoris Seeker self-selection
Instagram / Reels	Accessible depth	The shame and guilt angle — parents' wound, not yours	15-35 ICP discovery and field building
Long-form writing	Full philosophical depth	The karmic architecture angle — why the pattern repeats	Seeker qualification and Mirror conversion
AI Agent distribution	Varied by platform	All angles deployed simultaneously	Volume and consistency without founder bandwidth depletion

Critical distinction: the AI agent handles distribution and scheduling. The founder writes the content from genuine Pranamaya transmission state — after sadhana, not from content strategy. Content written from the Manomaya strategy layer transmits strategy. Content written from the Vijnanamaya layer transmits recognition. The participants will feel the difference.

5.3 The Revenue Architecture

Tier	Product	Price	Function
Free	Content + Mirror entry version	Free	Field building. Viveka filter operating. Threshold made visible. ICP self-selection.
Level 1-2	Mirror + Blueprint	INR 2,000-5,000	First paid Viveka filter. 100 sessions monthly = 3-5 lakhs monthly. AI infrastructure scales this.
Level 3	Circles — 8 weeks	INR 15,000-25,000 per person	10 people per circle = 1.5-2.5 lakhs per circle. Two circles monthly = 3-5 lakhs.
Level 4	Intensives — 3-5 days	INR 50,000-100,000 per person	12 people per intensive = 6-12 lakhs. Quarterly = 24-48 lakhs annually from this tier alone.
Level 5	Orbisojas + Transmission lineage	Premium subscription + per-offering	Recurring revenue from committed participants. The transmission lineage creates certified guides.

5.4 The Parallel Track — ClawBot and AI Consulting

Amoris cannot be built from empty pockets. The philosophical depth requires the material ground. The ClawBot AI agency and B2B sales automation consulting track provides the runway while Amoris builds its field.

Target: 15-20 lakhs monthly from ClawBot enterprise clients by end of SA-MA antardasha (May 2027). Three B2B SaaS clients at 30-50k monthly each for custom voice AI workflow deployment.

This is not a distraction from Amoris. It is the Mars energy of SA-MA operating correctly — the directed warrior building the material ground while Jupiter retrograde's Amoris transmission builds toward its concentrated release.

PART SIX: THE GAMIFIED ARCHITECTURE — APPENDIX

RDR2 produced genuine transmission — players wept for Arthur Morgan because the game created authentic encounter with a man facing his own shadow, his own mortality, his own failed redemption. God of War initiated players into the father-son shadow dynamic with Jungian precision. Amoris is this — not a game about transformation but a genuine transformation architecture expressed through the most immersive medium available.

6.1 Why The Game Frame Is Precise

The existing gamified personal development — habit apps, mindfulness apps, productivity systems — gamifies Manomaya layer behaviour change. Points for showing up. Rewards for consistency. This produces temporary behaviour modification without structural transformation.

Amoris gamifies Pranamaya and Vijnanamaya layer transformation. The progression is not tracked through behaviour metrics. It is tracked through the quality of Pranamaya recognition — can the participant feel the difference between their contracted field and their expanded field? That felt distinction IS the level progression.

This has never been built before because most game designers don't have access to the Pranamaya framework. The Amoris founder does — from lived experience across 34 years of genuine inhabitation. Not from theory. From the specific curriculum the framework addresses.

6.2 The Game Architecture

The World — Orbisojas Universe

The entire cosmological framework is the world's lore. Not delivered upfront — discovered through play. The Yuga transition context, the Kosha architecture, the Vayu-Nadi system, the karmic architecture — these reveal themselves as the participant progresses through levels.

The Player Character — Wound-Type Archetype

Every participant enters as a specific archetype revealed through the Mirror diagnostic. Not chosen — revealed. Wounded Bhairava. Wounded Bhairavi. Projected Wholeness Seeker. These are the character's starting condition — the specific wound configuration they carry into the journey.

The Boss Encounters — Shadow Material as Threshold

At each level transition the participant faces a specific internal encounter that cannot be bypassed — only met. These are not obstacles. They are the initiatory threshold crossings that the level transition requires.

- Level 1-2: Body Shame Boss — the physical shame encoding met directly in the body.

- Level 2-3: Pranamaya Contraction Boss — the automatic withdrawal from genuine connection felt fully.
- Level 3-4: Lineage Wound Boss — the ancestral pattern recognised as not-self.
- Level 4-5: Spiritual Ego Boss — the accumulated attainment released into service.
- Level 5 completion: The Final Mirror — the participant becomes their own mirror.

The Multiplayer — Circles as Group Field

The Circles are the multiplayer environment. Participants at the same level working through the same boss encounter simultaneously. The group Pranamaya field amplifies what individual work cannot produce alone — the resonance of multiple fields in genuine recognition creates a collective dissolution of the Anava Mala contraction that is qualitatively different from individual dissolution.

The Open World — Orbisojas Beyond Amoris

For participants who complete the Amoris five-level journey — the Orbisojas open world unlocks. The deeper Kaula framework. The advanced Jyotish diagnosis. The transmission lineage for those who want to become threshold guides. The game never ends because consciousness itself is genuinely infinite.

6.3 The Scaling Principle

Amoris does not scale through marketing. It scales through the proliferation of genuine homecoming moments in the world.

Each genuine homecoming creates a person who carries the Amoris transmission frequency in their own field. They become transmission nodes — not affiliates, not marketers, not brand ambassadors. Simply people whose field now carries the remembering quality and naturally creates it in those around them.

Ramakrishna had twelve direct disciples. Those twelve changed the consciousness of an entire subcontinent within two generations. Not through marketing. Through the quality of the homecoming they carried. Amoris scales the same way — slowly at first, then suddenly, then permanently.

PART SEVEN: WHAT REMAINS TO BE DEVELOPED

This document represents the framework spine as it currently stands. Three elements remain intentionally incomplete — not because the framework is unclear but because they require real client data to specify correctly.

Gap 1 — The Nadi-Vayu Medicine Specifics

The precise breathwork and somatic practices that address each Vayu disturbance for each wound type. The framework is clear — Vyana contraction for fear, Apana reversal for shame, Samana blockage for guilt. The specific practices need testing and refinement through the first cohort. This is the technical therapeutic layer that develops through genuine clinical iteration.

Gap 2 — The Jyotish Integration Layer

The systematic mapping of natal chart signatures to specific Kosha-Vayu-wound configurations. The D12 ancestral wound patterns we identified are the starting point. The complete system requires sufficient chart-plus-client data to establish reliable pattern correlations. The first 50 Mirror sessions generate the foundational dataset.

Gap 3 — The Progression Assessment Framework

How to recognise and confirm genuine level progression in participants — not through self-report but through observable Pranamaya field quality shifts. This requires the guide's developed Pranamaya sensitivity and systematic observation across multiple participants. It cannot be theorised in advance. It is earned through genuine facilitation experience.

The incompleteness is correct at this stage. The framework is tested through the first cohort. The first cohort refines what the theory cannot yet specify. This is the living document of a transmission system that develops through genuine contact with the material it addresses — not a finished product but an evolving intelligence.

— Document Complete —

Amoris-Orbisojas IP v3 — March 2026 — Living Document

Confidential — For Internal Framework Development Only